Shakespeare and the Theatre

<http://www.william-shakespeare.org.uk>

Definitive website on the life and times of the Bard. Some good links to information about the writing and publication of his plays. A lot of text but well set out so accessible for this age range. Watch out for ads on the site though www.shakespeare-online.com/biography

Detailed and informative online resource. Very text heavy and very few pictures to break up the text so more suitable for able readers

Sports

www.historylearningsite.co.uk/tudor_sports_and_pastimes.htm

www.expertfootball.com/history/soccer_history.php

World history of football. A bit about the Middle Ages and the development of mob football www.footy4kids.co.uk/short_history_of_football.htm

A site giving information on the history of football. An interesting site guaranteed to appeal but watch the ads

Food

<http://tudorhistory.org/topics/food>

A really good site. Short passages on different aspects of food, including recipes, ingredients, how and what the Tudors ate

www.aboutbritain.com/articles/tudor-food.asp

A good site which tells you all about food for posh people!

www.mape.org.uk/curriculum/history/tudorfood.htm

Very detailed information on food basics for all people in the Tudor period. A bit text-heavy but readily accessible for this age range

<http://cookit.e2bn.org/historycookbook/index-32-tudors.html>

Real Tudor recipes. See what you fancy for tea tonight!

<http://www.the-tudors.org.uk/tudor-food-for-banquet-or-feast.htm>

Menus of Tudor meals. See what you could have eaten if you were brave enough?
